Quaker Letters: Moore 1850s	Letters have been scanned	A loose transcription of the letters with extensive footnotes linking families and events described.	PDF
1810-1910 Centenary Souvenir - Norwich, Ontario	Norwich Gazette	A history of the village of Norwich and the township of North Norwich, together with the sketches of people and enterprises. Written and compiled by the Norwich Gazette and published under authority of the council of Norwich and North Norwich. 96 p. New versions were professionally reproduced for the 2010 anniversary.	20.00
1875 Census of Inhabitants	Norwich and District Archives	In late January, 1875, a census and enumeration was taken of the inhabitants of Norwichville. Eight hundred and twenty seven of the inhabitants wished to have the village incorporated as noted by petition on 28 January 1875. A day later, a second petition was read in County Council claiming that the matter hadn't received adequate consideration and that the boundaries of the proposed village were not accurate. However, the Municipal Council of the County of Oxford passed a by-law (By-law 195) to incorporate the Village of Norwich. This book lists all of the inhabitants, both pro and con the motion. It is beautifully presented on parchment paper with an index at the back. 41 p.	13.00

The Apple Works	Norwich and District Archives (on shelf 42)	Norwich township has long been known as a centre for good apple orchards. Diaries, reports, and articles document the history of apple growing in this fertile area. As well, there is the story of Allen's Apple works and several other apple-related industries. At the back of the book are some favourite apple recipes. 66 p.	5.00
Amelia Poldon History of the Norwiches	Norwich and District Archives	This book was compiled from newspaper articles written by Miss Poldon detailing the early history of North and South Norwich and the many municipalities located within these townships. The pages are filled with her comprehensive accounts of people and their lives, commerce and industry, farming activities and local education. This is an excellent book for researchers and for those who are just interested in knowing more about a by-gone era. 141 p.	30.00

Early Electric Lighting in Norwich	S. Webster	The history of electric lighting was compiled by Stanley Webster, P. Eng., based on information from his father's diary. Herbert Webster was the co-founder of the Norwich Electric Light Company and kept detailed accounts of the building and operation of the Norwich Electric Light Plant, which first produced power to operate lights in Norwich in 1898. Many reproductions of original official agreements and by-laws of the Village of Norwich pertaining to electric lighting are included. 48 p.	2.50
Familiar Fields to Foreign Soil : Three Rural Townships	Jennifer Arthur-Lackenbauer, Peter Kikkert, and P. Whitney	"Our goal was to illuminate how wartime experiences were deeply woven into the fabric of local life," Prof.	30.00

at War, 1914-1918	Lackenbauer, 2018	Lackenbauer explains. "We wanted to take readers on a journey, through the eyes of local men and women. There are the stories of soldiers who fought and died in the muddy trenches on the Western Front, but also those of the woman who organized patriotic societies and knitted socks for the men overseas." The team "wanted this book to capture the rural context – how demands for increased agricultural production, as well as demands for men to serve in uniform, deeply affected Ontario farm families and changed the rhythms of rural life."
Four-Foot Cucumbers, Juvenile Delinquents & Frogs from the Sky	Crystal Fulton & Glen C. Phillips (on shelf 41)	This is a wonderful collection of 19th century newspaper excerpts, including such delights as a schooner's altercation with a whale (Nanaimo Free Press) to the display of a two-faced calf (Charlottetown Daily Examiner) to the cancellation of a wedding because the prospective groom showed up drunk (Huntsville Forester). All manner of reporting is contained in these pages, from the champion tapeworms to a drunken Sir John A. Macdonald. Insightful, often humorous, and always entertaining, this book is a must for the historically adventurous. 150 p.	13.00
Gleanings by the Bushel	Carson Bushell	This book contains a heritage of information for the descendants of the early settlers in the Norwich area - edited 1982. Included in this is information on businesses in Norwich Township predominately pre-1900. 148 p.	30.00 some used ones available

A History of East Oxford Township	East Oxford Centennial Project	The Old Stage Road cuts right through the top portion of East Oxford, a main transportation and supply route, and the location of many tales of hidden treasure. This fascinating book describes the township roads as well as the many villages, churches, and schools, some of which exist now, only in memory. There are some great stories included: Cassie Bigley Chadwick was born in Eastwood; the first telephone lines were strung along Thomas Hart's fence; Joe Boyle, one of only two men who returned from the Klondyke as a millionaire and who later became an adventurer and the friend of royalty, once owned a house in East Oxford. 80 p.	20.00

A Hotbed of Treason: Norwich and the Rebellion of 1837	David Brearley	Armed rebellion in Upper Canada came only after a long-sustained but unsuccessful effort to secure political and administrative reform. This book details the events leading up to the insurrection in the prosperous farming area that later became the County of Oxford, particularly Norwich and Dereham Townships. Life at the time of the rebellion must have been exciting for those of an adventurous nature, but very insecure for a great many others. The fortunes and misfortunes of the inhabitants are described as the author	(20.00) None currently available attempts to define what caused these men to rebel in the first place. 107 p.

House of Refuge	County of Oxford Archives	A brief description of Woodstock's House of Refuge. 10 p.	2.00
Index for Land Transactions from the Township Papers	Compiled by Muriel Buckrell	Contains definitions of terms used. Tells of the beginning of land transactions in British Upper Canada as well as a brief history of the first purchasers. Clergy and Crown Reserves are explained and an index of names involved in the early transaction along with their lot and concession are included. 193 p.	25.00
Inns and Taverns of Oxford County	Roy Johnstone	This book contains lists of the many inns of Oxford County, their location, the names of the innkeepers, and other related information. For instance, did you know that two poplar trees were often planted by the gate at the front of an inn to welcome travellers and stagecoaches? The importance of inns and taverns in earlier days has often been under-estimated. Inns were often the centre of a community's social activities, acting as church, general meeting place, election poll station, post office, retail outlet, and information centre. 90 p.	19.00
